3. Expand and Improve Transit Access

Morgan Junction Residential Urban Village
Southwest Sector

What happened in 2002

- Lincoln Park Annex - Construction was completed on the viewpoint at the Lincoln Park Annex (SW Webster and Fauntleroy Way). The scenic overlook features paths, a plaza, and landscaped berms that align seasonally with the setting sun. The viewpoint was funded with $258,000 from the Pro Parks Levy. Work progressed on the Vegetative Management Plan for the upper wooded area of the Annex. City crews began removal of invasive locust trees in preparation for planting of native species, funded by $10,000 Neighborhood Matching Fund Grant.
- P-Patch - Morgan Community Association received a $5,000 grant from Safeco and a $3,000 grant from the Seattle Foundation to support the development of a P-Patch community garden near the tennis courts in the Lincoln Park Annex. The community applied for and received $70,000 Neighborhood Matching Fund grant for P-Patch development. A metalwork gateway for the future P-Patch was designed by a local artist, Mimi Riley.
- Gateway Triangle - Morgan Community Association members planted trees and installed a gateway sign with assistance from Seattle Department of Transportation to calm traffic and create a more pedestrian friendly environment.
- Myrtle Street Reservoir - In May 2002, Mayor Nickels announced plans to build lids over the seven remaining uncovered reservoirs. Under the plan, the Myrtle Street reservoir is scheduled to be covered and redeveloped into open space by 2009.

What's Underway In 2003

- Lincoln Park - Neighborhood will continue to work with the Parks Department on the Vegetation Management Plan for the upper-park wooded area.
- P-Patch - The P-Patch construction was completed with a dedication ceremony on June 13.
- Transit Access - The neighborhood is responding to the Seattle Monorail Project by continuing to participate on the West Seattle Monorail Committee, and in station design and station-area planning activities sponsored by the Monorail.
